U. S. LEGATION ASKS INQUIRY INTO DEATH OF DINSMORE

Note Also Asks For Protection Of Americans In Future

FUNERAL HELD

British Envoy Demands Immediate Steps To Free Mackay

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Foochow, May 24.—The funeral of Mr. Dinsmore, who died as the result of a pistol wound inflicted by bandits, took place yesterday. The ceremony was an impressive one. The Civil Governor escorted the remains from the Bund to the grave.

Mr. Mackay and the Chinese are still in captivity in spite of the pressure brought to bear by the British and American Consulates.

The Yenping military have apparently not yet been instructed by the Tuh to act in the matter.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, May 26.—The American Legation sent a Note to the Waichiaopu on Saturday calling attention to the report of the murder of Mr. Dinsmore and expressing hope that a full inquiry would be held and that if the circumstances proved as reported, the murderers would be suitably punished. The Note added that the Legation hoped that Americans in future would be properly protected.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, May 26.—The British Legation has sent a Note to the Waichiaopu concerning the captivity of Mr. Mackay and asking the Chinese Government to take immediate steps for his release.

Further evidence of the heroism of Mr. Jay Dinsmore, forest inspector of the China Import and Export Lumber Company who was slain by Fukien bandits, was contained in a telegram received by the company's offices here yesterday. The message makes it clear that Mr. Dinsmore sacrificed his life, or at least whatever chance he had for survival, in attempting to succor his companions—Mr. A. G. McKay and three Chinese, including Mr. Paul Lee, an American University graduate—who were in the brigands' hands.

The wire stated that Mr. Dinsmore, though shot through the abdomen and wounded about the head, must have walked about ten miles from Pichikow, at the junction of the Min River and the Shachiho, before he got the small boat in which he floated down the river to Shahsien. Arriving at Shahsien, he refused to proceed to a point further on where he could have been given expert medical assistance, but remained in order to exert all possible influence toward the release of his comrades. It is believed that he was suffering from internal hemorrhage at the time but he sent off a wire to Foochow in which he related the experience and asked that, in the event publicity were given the story, a cable message might be sent to his brother in Minnesota to the effect that his injuries were not serious.

Mr. Carl L. Seitz, director of the China Import and Export Lumber Company, yesterday paid high tribute to Mr. Dinsmore as a man and as a worker for the firm, with which he had been connected for the past ten years, and expressed the deep sorrow felt by all members of the company over his tragic death.

News is anxiously being awaited here from the emmisary sent from Foochow to the scene of the outrage to obtain more details and to try and effect the release of the men held by the outlaw gang.

Peking Dust

A Daily Chronicle Of The Capital's News And Gossip

(By Our Staff Correspondent)

Peking, May 22.—The days of miracles have not passed!

Today, after two days of prayer to the historic "Iron Tablet" containing the spirit of the Rain God Peking was visited by a terrific thunder and lightning storm, following by a rainfall of several hours duration—the first rain that has fallen in the capital since last September.

Only two days ago, after the drought had continued until nearly all the crops in the countryside surrounding Peking had been burned up, the ancient tablet, with a record of having produced rain on several historic occasions, was brought to Peking from Hantan Hsien in Shantung, where it has been installed in a temple all its own, and where it receives the know-tows requisite and necessary to propriate the Dragon King, in whose province they keep the rain clouds.

The tablet was escorted from the prosaic railway station to the Temple of the Most High near Coal Hill, just outside the Forbidden City in magnificent style reminiscent of the days of the Manchu Emperors, and since then the leading gentry and officials have kowtowed, offered up incense offerings and prayed for rain for two days.

And today it rained!

CONFUCIAN TEMPLE NEEDS REPAIRS

President Tsao Kun has just received from Civil Governor Hsiung Ping-chi of Shantung a petition made by the Magistrate of Choufu Hsien requesting that the Government allocate funds for the repair of the Confucian Temple at the birthplace of China's famous sage. The back temples, according to the petition, are rapidly falling into decay because of the lack of funds to repair them and keep them up, and were it not for the staunch foundations on which they were originally laid it is said they would entirely collapse.

The petition asks that a special deputy be sent to Choufou to take charge of the repairing of the temples on the historic spot which is annually visited by thousands of ardent Confucianists as well as by a large number of foreigners.

Official Chinese records give the number of temples dedicated to Confucius, attached to examination halls, at 1,560. Practically every city of any pretensions in the entire land has a temple to his memory, but the one at Choufou, because of the associations attached to it, is, to the Chinese, as sacred as the little manger where the Christ child was born in Bethlehem. For that reason they are making energetic moves to obtain funds with which to repair the temple, and for the same reason it is quite likely that despite the Peking Government's cry of a financial shortage the money to repair the temple will be forthcoming.

CRIME WAVE HITS PEKING

Peking is supposedly suffering from a "crime wave" that is attracting considerable attention in the Chinese press of the capital, principally because of the two most recent criminal incidents, the attempted assassination of Dr. Wellington Koo, the Foreign Minister, and the murder of the daughter of a Member of Parliament and a servant.

The story of the bomb sent to Dr. Koo with its disastrous results for his servants has caused quite a flurry in political circles and there are the usual insinuations that it was sent by high officials opposed to Dr. Koo and his policies, or jealous of his success. The Chinese press yesterday even went so far as to intimate that a foreigner was connected with the outrage, leaving the reader to pick out his own favorite foreigner on whom to vent his wrath. Actually there have been no developments in the case despite the fact that the police, as is usual in such cases have promised publicly to "arrest the offender in a few days."

The second case of criminal activity resulted in the death of Miss Tien, daughter of an M. P. from Manchuria, and a servant. The robbers, one of whom was captured at the time badly wounded, and the other who was killed, entered the house and demanded to see Mr. Tien on the excuse that they were fellow provincials. Mr. Tien was not at home and the two robbers, after handling the occupants roughly, tied Mrs. Tien up with ropes and demanded that she reveal the hiding place of their treasures—much after the manner

Anglo-American Unity In East Highly Praised By Admiral Sir A. Leveson

British Naval Chief, As Honor Guest At Peking Tiffin, Sees Wonderful Progress, In Which Navies Have Had Big Part

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, May 23.—Admiral Sir Arthur Leveson, K.C.B., Commander-in-Chief of the British China Station, was the guest of honor at Anglo-American Association's tiffin at the Grand Hotel des Wagon-Lits today. Sir Francis Aglen presided over a big attendance, amongst those present being His Ex. the British Minister (Sir Ronald Macleay) and Mr. W. R. Peck, Chinese Sercetary of the American Legation.

After he had been briefly introduced by the Chairman, Admiral Leveson said he should like to say first of all that he felt amongst friends and that was a point he wished to bring out very much. Dwelling with emphasis upon the traditional friendship between the English and the Americans, he said he would like to mention that he was a "Pilgrim." He was not a poet, he hastened to assure the gathering amidst laughter, but he was a "Pilgrim" and the "Pilgrims" were an Anglo-American organisation which had a similar object to this Association in Peking—the fostering of friendship between the two countries. During the war, the Admiral continued, he was very closely associated with American naval squadrons and wherever they went British naval officers and American naval officers fraternised together. They not only worked together but they played together and that was one of the reasons for the co-operation which always existed wherever the Americans and English were found side by side. The general work which went on here in China was largely due to the close co-operation of the two Navies.

Another form of friendship to which Admiral Leveson wanted to allude was the friendship and hospitality that the Navies of both nations received from the civilians with whom they came into contact. Wherever they had gone they had met with the utmost friendliness and co-operation on all sides and that was one of the things which had struck him most since he had been out here. He should like, moreover, to congratulate the civilians on what he had seen out here in the way of the advancement of civilisation and the significant work that all the various civil elements were carrying out under difficult circumstances all over the Far East.

There were one or two other impressions he had received in coming out to the East for the first time. One them was the significant shipping—the size of the vessels of all sorts and of all nations and their great numbers. Wherever one went there he saw numbers of these great vessels and in no other ports of the world were so many ships of such size and efficency to be seen. Admiral Leveson said he would like to see the statesmen of every country coming here to see what is going on in the East and he thought the people who maintained these ships were beyond all praise for the way they were advancing civilisation here. Trade and development must, he thought, go on and increase while they had such fine vessels to carry on the work and, incidentally, that brought out the usefulness of the Navies, which were out to be helpful and to look after things.

Another thing which Admiral Leveson said had impressed him a good deal was the way in which tropical races out here were being administered by the more civilised peoples, as in the case of the Dutch in Java, the French in Annam, the British in Malaya, the Americans in the Philippines. He thought it was "perfectly wonderful" to see all these different nationalities handling the situation in the way they were handling it, all over the Far East. There was an old nautical adage that "different ships have different long splices, but the splice holds nevertheless." It was true of the way in which all these different places were being governed—there were different methods but there was good in them all.

The Admiral confessed that he found the subject of China a very difficult one to pass any remarks upon. He had always heard that this country had retained an ancient civilisation. It was to be hoped that, with the aid of her friends, and of the United States and Great Britain in particular, her civilisation would gradually be brought more into accord with modern developments. He had been very fortunate in going up the Yangtsze to see the province of Szechuen and he was enormously struck with the possibilities of that part of the country, with its wonderful river, down which merchant ships and Navies could move. He thought the future of these parts up there in the head waters of the Yangtsze lay in the lap of the Gods but that it was going to be a magnificent future.

"To those of you who are interested in river steamers," Admiral Leveson declared, "I can only say—push your ships up. There is stuff to get there and the steamers are taking the place of the junks and are doing an enormous deal of good work." Sir Arthur said that he would conclude with the words which were so often in the mouth of Stonewall Jackson "Press Forward." "And I would add," he said, "press forward with energy, discipline and civilisation." (Applause).

On behalf of the Committee and members of the Association, Sir Francis Aglen tendered cordial thanks to Admiral Leveson for his interesting address.

OUTLOOK BRIGHT FOR THE SOVIET, CONGRESS TOLD

Zinovieff Views Domestic And Foreign Situation Optimistically

(Reuter's Service)

Riga, May 25.—In a speech discussing the tasks of the Congress of the Russian Communist Party, M. Kameneff said that the party was in no danger from the activities of the intelligentsia and the spreading of their ideals. The party's proletarising campaign was making such sweeping progress that it was unnecessary to institute any special clearing measures against the intelligentsia. Moreover, the non-Communist elements had already been removed.

The latest reports from Petrograd state that the Soviet authorities are not only depriving the intelligentsia of facilities for securing higher education by forbidding them to attend higher schools, but are expelling proletarian students who exhibit initial signs of a tendency towards non-Communist ideas, hoping thus to prevent anti-Communist intelligence from developing.

It is announced from Moscow that a mine-manager and engineer named Jacobson has been sentenced to death at Omsk on a charge of economic espionage. He had informed the former owners of the mine, residing in England, of the condition of their property.

(Reuter's Service)

Moscow, May 25.—M. Zinovieff, addressing the Congress of the Russian Communist Party, said that he was justified in viewing the domestic and foreign situation of the Soviet optimistically. Recognition by a number of countries had undoubtedly consolidated the international position, but the problem of debts and claims was difficult.

The Soviet earnestly desired to cultivate lasting ties with Britain. The chief aims of the Government were to regularise the home market and promote cooperation. There was no question of limiting the new economic policy or of abolishing private trade. Strengthening of cooperative societies was the only means of combatting private capital.

Private capital now controlled 64 percent of home trade and the State 36 percent. Russia during the present trade year had only exported 200,000,000 poods of grain, but in the coming year would export 400,000,000, as compared with 2,000,000,000 before the war.

WEMBLEY NOW IS MECCA FOR ALL BRITONS; IS FINE SHOW

Saturday's Attendance Figures Passed The 150,000 Mark

FAMOUS VISITORS

Italian King And Queen To See Exhibition This Week

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 25.—In spite of the cold and showery weather, the British Empire Exhibition again attracted throngs of visitors last week, culminating in an attendance of over 150,000 on Saturday alone. The week's visitors included various Royalties, oversea Governors, Foreign Ambassadors and other prominent people from various countries, thus aiding in the cosmopolitan note which is a feature of Wembley.

The King and Queen, who have already seen the Show several times, will pay another visit to it on Wednesday, accompanied by the King and Queen of Italy. The Royal party will visit the various buildings, after which there will be an official reception and a luncheon at the British Government Pavilion.

All parts of the Exhibition are attracting attention. The Hong-ong market is in full swing, the pavements of its miniature street are daily crowded with sightseers. The philosophic detachment of the Chinese shopkeepers heightens the illusion of the street, which is not merely a part of the Exhibition but part of Hongkong itself.

The beautiful Malaya Pavilion, with well-arranged rubber, basketwork and other exhibits, completes the picture of the East.

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 25.—The Empire Thanksgiving service at Wembley was marred by unsettled weather, there being a cold, boisterous wind accompanied by showers, with occasional thunder. The sun shone brilliantly when Their Majesties actually arrived at the Stadium, but rain descended later. Nevertheless the attendance is estimated at nearly 100,000. Mr. J. R. Clynes (Lord Privy Seal), Mr. Arthur Henderson (Home Secretary), Mr. J. H. Thomas (Colonial Secretary), Mr. Noel Buxton (Minister of Agriculture), and Mr. F. W. Jowett (First Commissioner of Works) represented the Cabinet.

Electro Bank To Aid Development

The Ex-Kaiser Is 'Looking Up'

Above is an exclusive photograph of Ex-Kaiser Wilhelm, of Germany, with his wife, the former Princess Hermine, pictured on the streets of Doorn, Holland, their exile retreat. The picture was made Good Friday, anniversary of the death of the former Kaiserin. The bodyguard of the ex-Kaiser paid no attention to the individual in peasant attire who carried a camera hidden in a workman's bag. This photograph, by far the best taken in years, shows the great change that has been wrought in Wilhelm.

SECRET SOCIETY BATTLES BANDITS IN NORTH KIANGSU

"White Plumes," Unarmed, Round Up Outlaw Gang

(China Press Correspondence)

Hsuchowfu, Kiangsu, May 23.—The writer a few days ago passed a village where a few days ago six robbers had been slain in fight and another captured and executed.

Two features of this law and order supression are worthy of note. It seems that the robbers were rounded up and held at bay by members of the "White Plume Society," who though mostly armed with farm implements and spears, while the robbers all carry firearms, have courage born of faith in their incantations. At any rate they surrounded the robbers and held them until soldiers arrived and opened fire, with the result mentioned above.

These soldiers, be it understood, are to be carefully distinguished, and are distinguished in the public mind from imported soldiers belonging to the great generals. They are militia, locally recruited, and as such have the confidence of the people. All of which goes to prove that even the country could become self governing, given a chance.

ROUND-WORLD AVIATORS TO ATTEND BALL

Final Plans Made For Charity Affair To Be Given By American Community

Pilots of the American round-the-world airplanes, who are expected to reach Shanghai within the next week, will be the special guests of honor at the American Charity Ball to be held on Wednesday, June 4, at Marble Hall, the home of Mr. E. S. Kadoorie. Officials of the American Legion, to whom has been entrusted the entertainment of the American round-the-world aviators during their stay in Shanghai, announced yesterday that on behalf of the aviators they had accepted the invitation of the committee to attend the ball.

Final arrangements for the ball were made yesterday at a tiffin tendered the committee at the American Woman's Club by Dr. Anne Walter Fearn, president of the American Woman's Club. Those who attended the tiffin were: Dr. Fearn, Mrs. Gardner Crane, Mrs. E. H. Staber, Mrs. E. H. Himrod, Mrs. E. S. Cunningham, and Messrs. J. E. Eichwald, A. B. Rosenfeld, Gardner Crane, E. L. McCloskey, W. I. Esler, Carl Crow, E. S. Cunningham, E. H. Staber, C. M. Wentworth, W. Chalaire and George W. Brush.

Reports from heads of committees at yesterday's tiffin indicated that nothing would be left undone to make the ball one of the greatest social functions in the history of the American community. On behalf of the entertainment committee, Mrs. Gardner Crane, chairman, reported that special plans were being made for an elaborate program of entertainment. Mrs. Staber, chairman of the flower committee, announced that it had been decided that no flowers would be sold at the ball, but that each lady and gentleman in attendance would be presented with flowers.

Other committee chairmen who reported were: Mr. McCloskey, floor committee; Mrs. Himrod, tickets committee; Mr. Wentworth, accounts committee; Mr. Crow, publicity committee, and Mr. Rosenfeld, traffic committee. Mr Rosenfeld, announced that special

Protest Affront To Japanese In Immigration Law

(Special to The China Press)

Washington, May 24.—The Commission for the bringing about of international justice and good will, led by the Council of Churches, has written a letter to President Coolidge protesting against the exclusion clause in the immigration bill, and expressing the hope that a way can be found to avoid this affront to Japan. The letter stated that the members of the commission feared that the "grave situation" mentioned by Ambassador Hanihara was already developing as a result of Japanese resentment.

U. S. FLIERS TO ARRIVE HERE SATURDAY IF PLANS CARRY

Consul General Cunningham Gets Message

D'OISY DELAYED

French Flier Held Up By Engine Trouble, May Go Tomorrow

The American world fliers expect to reach Shanghai next Saturday or Sunday, according to official word received here yesterday by United States Consul-General Edwin S. Cunningham from the Embassy at Tokio.

Only weather conditions or some unexpected mechanical trouble can delay the airmen, it is stated, and it is on the cards that the trio of army machines will hop off from Nagasaki Saturday morning, arriving here in the early afternoon.

Preparations for the reception of the daring squadron are being hurried to completion here, the landing space in the Whangpoo near Black Point has been laid out and the reception committee is busily planning a suitable welcome and various functions in honor of the fliers, details of which will be announced in the next day or two.

Engine Trouble Again Holds Up D'Oisy's Departure

The hard luck which has afflicted Captain, Pelletier d'Oisy, sensational French ace whose plane smashed at Kiangwan a week ago when he arrived here on the Paris-Tokio flight, evidently had not yet been shaken off and his start for Peking, planned for this morning, has again been postponed.

Engine trouble developing in the reconnaisance plane put at Capt. d'Oisy's disposal here by General Ho Feng-lin on behalf of the Chekiang Government, is the cause of the delay, but it is hoped that the trouble may be rectified today and that the gallant aviator may be able to take off at Lunghua tomorrow morning on his leg to the North.

Captain d'Oisy, Sergt. Vesin—his mechanician—and a corps of French and Chinese mechanics labored strenuously with the Breguet plane at Lunghua yesterday, but as dusk arrived it became apparent that the machine could not be used on the difficult overland journey set for today. A warped propellor, with resultant strain on the shaft of the engine, is believed to be the cause of the trouble, the consequent vibration making any immediate departure extremely hazardous.

The Breguet plane, which is 150 less horse power than the powerful machine which Capt. d'Oisy raced half-way round the world, and carries but a small store of fuel, had been repainted, with the Tri-Color and French targets and, moreover already has been christened "Jacqueline." "Jacqueline" is Capt. d'Oisy little daughter and the intrepid airman's first big Berguet plane was named after her.

Capt. d'Oisy evinced keen disappointment last evening when it become apparent that he would not be able to leave Shanghai as scheduled, but he expected to tackle the problem strenuously once more today and even though it probably means the installation of an entirely new engine, he hopes to hop off for Hsuchowfu, Tsinan and Peking tomorrow.

Tests were conducted throughout the afternoon yesterday, after Capt. d'Oisy had put in the morning in a careful study of maps of the country between here and the capital. After the plane had been thoroughly gone over in the hanger, it was wheeled onto the field and though no flight was attempted, the engine was put through its paces. Difficulty developing, the propellor, which was found to be slightly out of line, was changed and further tests were made. These likewise proved unsatisfactory and at sundown it became apparent that flight this morning was impossible.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, May 26.—Captain d'Oisy's delay is due to one provincial authority not yet having given permission to land on his territory but negotiations are proceeding and an early satisfactory settlement is expected.

(Eastern News Agency)

Tokio, May 25.—The American round-the-world fliers, who since their arrival here have been extremely busy attending a series of receptions, returned this evening to Kasumigaura, from where they are expected to restart on their world flight on the morning of the 29th instant.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, May 26.—Pending more complete details of the damage done to the British plane at Akyab, Colonel Broome has arranged tentative plans to rush a complete break-down plane from Hakodate to Akyab. It was first intended to assemble the plane at Hakodate and fly to Akyab but this was disregarded when Commander Abbott of the 43rd United States Destroyer Division, on learning of the Britishers' mishap, offered to Colonel Broome the use of an American destroyer to transport the plane from Hakodate at full speed as far as Hongkong. The offer is contingent on the approval of the Admiral of the Asiatic Fleet which is probable.

Colonel Broome accepted the offer gratefully and communicated the details to the British Admiral and is now awaiting a reply. Approximately two weeks are required for the plane to reach Akyab. Colonel Broome told Reuter's representative that Commander Abbott's offer exemplifies sportsmanship of the highest type.

(Reuter's Service)

Rangoon, May 25.—A telegram from Akyab states that none of the aviators were injured when Squadron-Leader MacLaren crashed.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, May 24.—"We knew that the trans-Pacific leg of our flight would be the worst part of our journey, but it was ten times worse than we had expected, with its unceasing battle against the most terrible weather and continuous effort to preserve the planes from damage." Thus the airman, Lieutenant Lowell Smith, briefly summed up the trip so far accomplished. He explained that the direction from east to west was more difficult, because it was contrary to the direction of the storms, which, he claimed, had handicapped the planes by an average of 300 miles a day.

Lieutenant Smith declared that Squadron-Leader MacLaren would have an advantage in this respect, but, still, for all that, he did not envy him his experiences across the Pacific.

The leader of the American aviators said that he did not believe that the Northern Pacific route was practicable for commercial flying with the present type of machines, though he paid a tribute to the Douglas planes, which have arrived in splendid condition, as well as the Liberty motors, which, he declared, were "the finest in the world."

Lieutenant Smith described the jump to Sitkase as the worst section of the flight. They had to battle against snow and wind throughout and had been unable to see the water, guiding their planes by following the line of breakers. Attu he declared to be the bleakest place of all, with the worst weather. "From the air this section of the world presents a weird picture; all white and blue snow-covered islands and deep blue sea." He did not see any icebergs but passed over many large glaciers.

Lieutenant Smith narrated how when riding out a snow storm on May 16 on the waters off Behring Island, the Russian authorities put out from the shore and informed the airmen that they were not allowed to land and must leave Russian territorial waters immediately, because, presumably, they were not welcome as Russia and America had no treaty relations. Lieutenant Smith replied that he was not there for pleasure and that he would be mighty glad to leave as soon as possible. That night the airmen rode out the storm in darkness. They were six hours on board their planes, and hopped off at eight o'clock the next day for Paramushiru, which, with the U. S. S. Ford, was one of the most welcome sights he had ever seen.

The leader paid a very generous tribute to the "splendid courage and fortitude of his companions, each of whom has given everything he had in this enterprise, in which all are brothers". He deplored the accident which had robbed them of Major Martin's leadership. He expressed very warm appreciation of the aviators' reception in Japan and the cooperation of the military and naval authorities as a great contributing factor to their success, as well as the lavish hospitality and accomodation at Kasumigaura, where everything had the joy of flying down the Japanese coast with its scenic beauties.

Lieutenant Smith expressed confidence that they would succeed in circling the world for, after the experience they had already gone through, "the rest of the trip should by comparison be easy sailing."

Peking Premier Again At Duties

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, May 22.—Premier Sun Pao-chi had recovered from his illness sufficiently this morning to attend the meeting of the Cabinet. Unofficially it is reported that the Vice-Minister of Finance furnished a report on the financial situation which put forward various difficulties in the way of tiding over the Dragon Festival.

School Children Tomorrow Repeat Shakespeare Play

Tomorrow at the Lyceum the youngsters of the Cathedral Schools will repeat their delightful production of Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and all who failed to attend the first performance are advised not to miss this opportunity.

The presentation given last week was one of the most delightful things of its kind seen here in many a long year, as was amply testified by the big audience which enjoyed it. The youthful players were both charming and adept, the costuming was beautifully done and the settings were in keeping. It is to be noted that all of the old original Shakespearean songs and dances have been retained in this production and are executed in most pleasing manner.

The performance tomorrow starts promptly at 5:15 p.m. and the doors will be closed on the rise of the curtain and will not be opened until the end of the first act.

All of the proceeds of the play are to go to the War Memorial new organ fund of the Cathedral.

No Decision Yet On Lincheng Demands

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Before the meeting terminated, however, the subject of the preliminary conference on the increase of Customs tariff was briefly mentioned but led to no action. The decision regarding the Lincheng demands has not yet been communicated to the Chinese Government and no statement will be made by the Diplomatic Body until its decision has been forwarded to the Waichiaopu.

of the Shanghai armed robbers going in for that sort of thing.

Upon Mrs. Tien's refusal the robbers fired, severely wounding the wife and killing the daughter instantly. They then killed a man servant. In the meantime a servant had escaped and gone to a house a few doors away where the funeral services of a dead policeman were being held. A number of fellow police were taking part in the rites and they immediately rushed to the scene of the robbery and murders. Upon their arrival the robbers attempted to flee, one was killed, and one was wounded. Two stories are current concerning their end—one that they attempted to commit suicide, one successfully, when they were cornered; the other that the police, armed even at the funeral services, did the shooting.

The story would very probably be relegated to an inside page on any Shanghai newspaper, but in Peking, where such things happen very seldom. It is one of the big stories of the day, particularly in view of the dearth of news of big moment in political and diplomatic circles.

The incidents have resulted somewhat in a reaction concerning the police tax that is now being levied on residents of the capital. Because of the constant bickering and squeeze prevalent in Chinese politics the police of the city have gone without their pay for an extended period. On one occasion they struck for one day, and have threatened to strike again, but for the time being at least are held in check by receiving a part of their pay from a tax levied on all residents. The Chinese newspapers are now pointing how much the police are needed, and particularly so with the present "crime wave" and urging the residents to calmly submit to the new taxes for fear that without pay the police will actually strike and leave the city a fair prey to bands of robbers.

Round-World Aviators To Attend Ball

traffic arrangements would be made by the police on the night of the ball in order to provide ample parking facilities for all motor cars and reduce to a minimum any confusion which might arise.

The ball, the first of its kind to be given by the American community, is expected to yield a good sum for American charities, as Mr. Kadoorie is kindly donating not only the use of his splendid home but all of the refreshments as well. Half of the proceeds will be turned over to the American civilian relief fund of the American Red Cross, and the remainder to the charity fund of the American Woman's Club.

Tickets to the affair are on sale at the following places: American-Oriental Banking Corporation, International Banking Corporation, Dr. John Goddard's offices, Squires and Bingham, Pacific Mail Steamship Company, American Club, Columbia Country Club, Robert House, Dollar Company, H. S. Konigsberg and Co., Inc., Admiral-Oriental Line, Palace Hotel and Astor House.

Notice To Subscribers

In an endeavor to produce an even better paper than was formerly the case—an endeavor which the steadily growing popularity of THE CHINA PRESS has proved to be successful—the publishers have recently increased the editorial staff, supplemented the cable and foreign correspondence services, added a pictorial news section, and improved the editorial and feature contents. These improvements naturally entail a much heavier cost of production, and thus we are reluctantly compelled to increase our rates of subscription, as from April 1st, as follows:

One Year	Mex.	$28.00
Six Months	"	15.00
Four Months	"	10.50
One Month	"	2.75

Postage to outports, etc. $6.00 per annum extra.

Under the new rates subscribers will still obtain THE CHINA PRESS more cheaply than it can be purchased day by day on the street. Allowing 312 publishing days to the year (260 weekdays and 52 Sundays), the annual cost, if purchased on the street, is $36.40.

"WHAT does it matter where my body happens to be?" said the Knight as Alice dragged him out by the feet. "my mind goes on working just the same In fact the more head-downwards I am. the more I keep on inventing things."

"Now the cleverest thing I ever did" he went on, "was to originate the idea of smoking a "Three Castles" between the soup and the fish.

"That was a good thing to invent, certainly," said Alice. "What else did you invent?"

"Smoking 'em between the fish and the entree," chuckled the Knight, "and then smoking 'em again between the entree and the pudding" "In fact," he went on. "I invent an excuse for smoking a "Three Castles" whenever I can.

The blade of the old sword is a fine specimen of the work of Yoshimitsu, who, with Masamune and Muramasa, stood at the head of the list of sword-makers in the Cho-kyo Era. Their work is considered superior to that of any others. The sword presented to Captain Clear was handed down in the Matsudaira family each generation until the time of the Restoration, when it was among the arms confiscated by the Government. It has since been in the possession of the War Department. The presentation of the sword to Captain Clear was made by Major- General Shiraishi.

CHINESE OFFICE BOY IS ACCUSED OF BIG FORGERY

Employe Of Foreign Firm Charged With Securing $3,900

A No. 2 office boy employed by Messrs. Harrisons, King and Irwin, Ltd., 39 Peking Road, will appear in the Mixed Court today charged with forging the name of Mr. B. W. Gale, one of the directors, to compradore orders amounting to $3,900.

It is alleged that the office boy, Tsha Kyung-dzen, has been forging Mr. Gale's signature to the orders for the past year or more and it is believed that the total amount secured by him in this manner exceeds the figure given. He is said to have confessed forging orders for more than $2,000. His method was to fill out blank compradore orders which he was able to secure in the office and have them presented to the compradore for payment by one Tsang Tsung-wo, another office boy employed by Messrs. Reuter, Brockelman and Co., 62 Kiangse Road. The latter also has been arrested and will appear with the first accused in court today. The forgeries are said to be excellent imitations of Mr. Gale's signature.

Huron In Nanking, Men Entertained

(China Press Correspondence)

Nanking, May 24.—The American flagship Huron has been in this port for some three days and during this time the community has had several opportunities to entertain and be entertained by the men from the ship. On Wednesday, May 21, a ball game was staged on the field of the University Middle School. In spite of the best that a picked local team could do, the sailors romped ahead and the score was 26 to 6 at the end of the game. That evening over 100 of the men were entertained in different homes and later in the evening gathered at the Community Center where, as guests of Hillcrest School,—the school for Foreign Children,—the charming drama, "The Neighbors," was given for their benefit. Mrs. H. Clemons, Miss H. Williams, Mrs. R. G. C. Clarke and Messrs. E. H. Hamilton and G. Curtis and others of the community also helped to express the welcome to the men.

On Thursday the children of Hillcrest School were the guests of the men on board ship, a privilege that does not come often to the youngsters up here.

A number of the men in t Language School have helped take the men around town an show them the sights.

Only Knowledge Of Pony History Can Lead To An Honest Classification

Note—This remarkable summary of the racing situation in China will, we feel sure, appeal to all fair minded sportsmen who have the good of racing at heart as the clearest survey of racing that has been printed here in years. "Pari Mutual," it may be stated, is an authority second to none on racing in China. His article will be published in installments, of which this is the second.

BY PARI MUTUAL
(Continues from Sunday).

Height is the only standard which an animal is brand-horse or pony in the equine world, outside China, it must be the standand here, being guided solely by our requirements in connection with that height limit. If the writer might make use of a criptic expression it is a case of "Spare the rod and spoil the pony." Fancy may lie, appearances may lie, but the rod will never lie, therefore within the limits of the rod "let 'em all come!" There are enough and to spare to give every one a chance of the better quality ponies, which, with a greater flooding of our pony markets, must naturally fall in price, bringing the cost within the means of the smallest owner. If this class is narrowed to a few, which would possibly escape the vigilance of the all seeing coterie forming the inspection committee, the price of those few must inevitably place them in the hands of the man with the long purse, to the detriment of the small owner, who would then stand not the ghost of a chance in the competition for ownership. The present writers definition of a pony, culled from home authorities and published three years ago was the best one that could be found at that time. However he feels compelled to take off his hat to a correspondent of the North China Daily News who, in writing from Tientsin, gave us the humorous and very accurate definition as to the deviding line between the so-called China pony and the so-called cross bred. He told us that there were only two classes of ponies "mine and the other fellows."

A VIVID ILLUSTRATION

The present writer very recently had a most vivid illustration as to the absolute accuracy of that definition, when talking to one of the young signatories to a circular letter, the object of which was to segregate the ponies from the mere hair trunks, leaving a couple of races a day for the ponies and the balance of the races on the card for the bona fide hair trunks. The writer asked the young signatory, "How could you have signed a letter like that, when you are part owner of" . . . . The answer came quickly back "Oh! but he is a pure China pony." The writer's reply was that it just is 'Mine and the other fellows' as our Tientsin friend says! Do you know where and from what stock your pony . . . . was bred. I know the Russian from near Hailar, where he was bred, and there is no China pony stallion, but there are three Russian pony stallions, not only used by the Russian owner but by the Mongol breeders in the vicinity. You will agree the pedigree is under suspicion and yet you affirm that your pony is pure China pony, verily a true illustration of "mine and the other fellows.' There is no one mixed up with the game of racing with any knowledge of the game, who does not know it is absolutely impossible to tell a thorough bred except by reference to the studbook (the history of blood stock). It is absolutely impossible to tell a so-called China pony from any nondescript pony of Asia and particularly the Siberian without reference to history. There are plenty of people ready at a moments notice to say they can. If they were true to their higher instincts of honor and were candid, after reflection they would be compelled to admit that to come to absolute bed rock it is only the family history of such ponies can define them.

NO PURE BREDS HERE

An intensively close study of the history of China and Tartary generally has convinced the present writer that not one single pony, which has ever been raced by the foreign community of China, has any pretensions to being a pure bred China pony. In fact there can only be the very minutest strain, if any at all, of the indigenous Mongol or China pony in his make up. When the admixture in the composition of the Tartar pony is only a question of degree it seems more than unseemly, that the noble sport of racing should be lowered to the very despicable standard of "mine and the other fellow's." The present writer, three years ago, attempted to point out that the species of animal with which we have been racing for over half a century was a very deteriorated offspring of the admixture of Arab, Persian Arab, Barbecan Arab and Turkestan Arab or Turquan, grafted on a continually decreasing strain of the Tartar aboriginal pony, from the slopes of the Altai Range of Mountains and not that of the Khingan Range, which is a later development of the Arabianised Altain species.

As the foundations, upon which is based the controversy around mine and the other fellows as either pure China pony or pure Mongol pony are nonexistant in fact, the whole controversy should tumble down like a wind blown house of cards. It is only the childish mind, which will continue to harbor a grievance, where actually no grievance exists. This vain search for a discriminating degree is so petty, so futile, it can only be parallelled by

"And Bahram, the great Hunter—the wild ass.
Stamps o'er his Head, and he lies fast asleep."

Dog Show Entries To Close Tomorrow

Entries for the Dog Show to be held at the Race Club, by kind permission of the Stewards, on Saturday, June 14, will close to Mr. Harry K. Strachan, c/o the North-China Daily News, at 6 p.m. tomorrow.

A number of very good dogs of many breeds already have been entered, and it is expected that the show will be much larger than last year's, which proved such a success in spite of the adverse weather conditions.

It is hoped to make a special feature of the classes for Chinese "wonks" and foreign half-breds. Silver cups will be given for each class, besides the usual ribbons and certificates. The hon. secretary would be glad to hear from any ladies or gentlemen who are competent to judge any classes.

MANILA BOXING FAN HERE STRONG FOR KID GONZALO

A. K. Knowles Thinks Filipino Will Flatten Billy Tingle Thursday

Mr. A K. Knowles, a well known boxing fan of Manila, is in Shanghai on a business trip, and is eagerly awaiting the forthcoming battle between Gonzalo and Billy Tingle, at the Carlton Thursday night. Mr. Knowles is a strong admirer of Gonzalo, although he has seen Tingle in action and concedes that he, too, is a tough customer.

"I don't know as much about Tingle as I do about Gonzalo," he said, "but take it from me: this Gonzalo boy is good. With careful handling I fully expect to see him contesting with Dundee for the latter's title. Tingle may beat him Thursday, but I will be at the ring side with some coin that says he won't. Gonzalo will open the eyes of fight fans here."

Arrangements are in progress for a match between Bobby Favacho and Volaire, the lad who put the quietus on Battling Kyko at the Stadium a few nights ago. Volaire says he has been after Favacho for this match and that Bobby has shied away, on the ground that they are not of the same weight.

"They should worry about weight," said Volaire, "when I am the one who is giving it away."

AMERICANS HERE GO TO SUNGKIANG TO WARD'S TOMB

Consul-General Cunningham Delivers Dedication Address At Unveiling

Members of the American Legion Post here, American officials, Chinese officials and others formed a sizeable party for the pilgrimage made to Sungkiang Sunday for the purpose of unveiling the monument erected by the Legion at the grave of General Frederick Ward, leader of the "Ever Victorious Army" of Taiping times, for whom the local Post is named.

Travelling in a special coach, the party left Shanghai at 9 a.m. On arrival at Sungkiang they marched to the tomb, where they were greeted by a large number of Sungkiang officials and found candles burning before the shrine erected by the Chinese to General Ward and his family.

Simplicity marked the dedication ceremony. The service opened with a prayer by the Rev. C. L. Boynton, of the Shanghai American School, and following this Mr. Gardner Crane, Commander of the Frederick Ward Post of the Legion, introduced United States Consul-General Edwin S. Cunningham, who made the dedicatory address.

"It is altogether fitting," said Mr. Cunningham, in part, "that Frederick Ward should be honored today by the American Legion, whose members are of those adventuresome Americans who crossed the Atlantic as Ward crossed the Pacific, and who fought in foreign lands for principles which they believed to be right and just and in defence of countries other than their own. But this memorial must be only a beginning of honors to be paid to his great-hearted American. This tablet that we unveil today is the first memorial erected exclusively by Americans in China to the memory of its distinguished citizen. It must not be the last, for on the American grounds in Shanghai, surrounded by Government buildings and under the flag of his country, a monument should be erected in commemoration of his services. The American Legion would do a great work if it accepts the responsibility for this monument. It will be a reminder to the Chinese people that it was erected to an American who helped their country in an hour of distress. His life typifies the great friendship that Americans and the American Government have always shown towards China. He brought that which China needed at that time."

Following Mr. Cunningham's speech, Mr. S. K. Chen, of the Bureau of Foreign Affairs here, who represented the provincial civil and military authorities, spoke briefly, paying tribute to General Ward, whom he described as one who had lent valuable assistance toward peace and good order in this part of China during the rebellion. On behalf of General Ho Feng-lin, local Defense Commissioner, and Mr. Hsu Yuan, Foreign Commissioner, he placed a wreath upon the grave.

The benediction was pronounced by the Rev. J. Bushey, of Grace Church, Sungkiang, and following this a firing party from the American ships in port here and Boy Scouts from the American School, fired a volley over the grave, after which "Taps" was sounded.

AGREEMENT SUIT IS MENTIONED IN AMERICAN COURT

In the course of the motion calendar which was heard by Judge Milton D. Purdy, in the United States Court for China yesterday, the case was mentioned in which Mr. Maurice David is suing Messrs. A. B. Rosenfeld and Son, to recover Tls. 25,000, alleged to be due under an agreement in which the plaintiff entered into partnership with the defendants. Plaintiff, in his amended petition, stated that as one of the terms of the partnership, he had to pay in Tls. 25,000, which he, in fact, did, the defendants agreeing to refund the same to him on his withdrawal from the partnership within ten years. Plaintiff had so withdrawn, and though he had demanded payment of the above-mentioned sum, defendants had not paid and refused to pay it.

Mr. S. A. Moss appeared for the plaintiff and Mr. F. J. Schuhl for the defendants in the latter's demurrer to the amended complaint.

Mr. Schuhl's demurrer stated that the amended complaint showed that the Tls. 25,000 was considered as capital of the partnership, and was not recoverable in any action save for one of accounting; that the amended complaint failed to show any cause of action, in that it failed to show that plaintiff had the right to withdraw from the partnership and that it did not show on the part of the plaintiff the performance of the following obligations entailed upon the plaintiff by the partnership agreement:

Payment of Tls. 5,000 per year for a period of four years;

Assumption of one-fourth of the indebtedness to J. Spunt and Co.;

Devotion of all his time and attention to the business.

Payment of his share of debts of the business accruing after May 17, 1921.

After a lengthy legal argument, the matter was adjourned for both counsel to cite authorities for their contentions.

OTHER CASES

In the case in which Tsang Mow-kwai is suing Aaron S. Glemby to recover the sum of Tls. 25,000 damages for injuries received owing to the alleged negligent driving of defendant's car by defendant, Mr. F. J. Schuhl, for the defendant, applied for an extension of time within which to file an answer, on the ground that the petition was not served upon defendant until the day before he was due to leave Shanghai for the States and that he will be away for a period of four months.

It was agreed between counsel for defendant and Mr. S. A. Moss for plaintiff, that defendant should be allowed until his return to file an answer, conditional upon the defence entering no demurrer to the complaint.

The case of V. Solovieff v. the Pacific Mail S. S. Co., in which the plaintiff is suing for damages for personal injuries, was set for hearing on September, 9, 1924.

June 7 was the date fixed for the hearing of the claim brought by the Chinese-American Bank of Commerce against Mr. F. A. Bowen arising out of exchange contracts between the two parties.

Bible Story Is Put Into Chinese Opera

The story of the prodigal son was put into a three-act Chinese opera in an entertainment given by the Recreation Department of the Shanghai College Middle School Y. M. C. A. Saturday night. It was a unique presentation and was enjoyed both by foreigners and Chinese students. The literary style in which the story was rewritten was pleasant. It was sung by three lads from the Academy to some of the most popular Chinese opera airs. It is said that this is the first attempt of the sort.

COMMON TROUBLE OF CHILDHOOD

How Baby's Own Tablets Banish Infantile Constipation

A difficulty many parents experience is to find a suitable constipation remedy for their children. The purgatives used by adults are too harsh, castor oil is dreaded by every child, and the various laxative powders usually prescribed are almost equally nauseating.

It was to overcome this difficulty that Baby's Own Tablets were devised. They are mild yet prompt in taste, absolutely pure, and guaranteed harmless even for the youngest and most delicate infant.

Baby's Own Tablets reduce fever, relieve constipation, colic and croup, check diarrhoea, sweeten the stomach, expel worms, allay teething pains, quiet the nerve and promote health-giving sleep, good appetite, and regular development. Medicine vendors sell them, also post free, 60 cents per vial (3 for six) from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 60 Kiangse Road, Shanghai.

ANNOUNCE PLAN FOR INDUSTRIAL PARLEY IN FALL

Conference At Peking To Be Divided Into Two Sections

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, May 23.—The Government Gazette announces, with reference to the proposal to call a Central Industrial Conference in Peking next Autumn, that the conference will be divided into two sections. One will be known as the Industrial Delegates Section and will be organised by the representatives of officially recognised industrial institutes and leading enterprises. The second will be termed the Industrial Administration Section and will be organised by the administrative authorities of industrial organisations in the provinces and provincial districts. The two sections will be held separately but both in Peking. The former will be under the auspices of the Ministry of Commerce. Its aim is to encourage and improve industries generally. It will last fifteen days but that period may be extended for ten days. The members will be chosen from the Chinese Chambers of Commerce throughout the country, representatives of the Ministry of Commerce, and fishing and mining institutions, while business concerns of Shanghai, Hankow, Tientsin, and Canton, authorised by the Ministry of Commerce, may each send one delegate. Chinese Chambers of Commerce overseas may also send a delegate each. One general committee and four executive committees will be elected from these delegates.

The Industrial Administrative Section will aim at development of industries also. Its special work will be to study the views and suggestions of the provincial administrative authorities, particularly with the view to deciding upon common policies. The delegates will be selected from the Industrial Commissioners in the provinces, representatives of gold and other mining, forestry and kindred industries.

Sleepy Sickness Causes Death Of Shipping Magnate

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 26.—The death of the shipping magnate and racehorse owner, Mr. Bower Ismay, from encephalitis lethargica, commonly called sleepy sickness, has freshly drawn attention to the recent alarming spread of this disease in Great Britain. There have been 280 cases reported weekly this month, and 2,500 cases since January 1 last, compared with an annual average of 839. The mortality is between 12 and 21 percent. Official and other researches have so far failed to discover the cause of the disease.

All-India Moslem League Revived

(Reuter's Service)

Lahore, May 25.—The All-India Moslem League, which had suspended its activities for the last few years, has been revived. Mr. Jinnah, a Bombay barrister, presiding at a large meeting of the League here today, deplored the dissension between Hindus and Moslems in India, especially in the Punjab. He declared that, if Hindus and Moslems only cooperated wholeheartedly, India would be able to force the British Parliament to grant her a responsible Government.

Mr. Jinnah dissociated himself from the Swarajist policy of wanton destruction, but declared that, if the British Government did not respond satisfactorily to the national demand, they must as a last resort make government through the elected Councils impossible. He urged the scrapping of the existing Constitution and the immediate grant of provincial autonomy, otherwise the results would be dangerous.

Norse Strikers Return To Work

(Reuter's Service)

Christiania, May 24.—After two months' idleness the 60,000 workers, involved in the industrial dispute between the National Association of Trades unions and the National Association of Employers, will resume immediately on terms fixed by the public mediator. The dispute arose out of a dockers' strike against reduction of wages and finally involved other industries. The employers proclaimed a lockout on Feb. 13.

No Change Yet In Russ Negotiations

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, May 22.—Premier Sun did not attend the meeting of the Senate yesterday afternoon, but the Cabinet Office sent a written reply to the Senate, explaining that the Premier was too ill to attend and stating that there had been no change in the relations of China and Russia since April 1. The Soviet Mission had sent no reply to Dr. Wellington Koo's Note.

The Cabinet, replying to the Senate's demand for submission to it of the nomination of the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, said that the present Chief Justice had been appointed prior to promulgation of the constitution, and the Cabinet, therefore, did not think that this case came under the Constitution.

A meeting will be held by the Senate on Friday next at which this question will be further discussed.

EMPIRE DAY IS CELEBRATED AS NEVER BEFORE

Throngs Flock To London In Special Trains; Prime Minister Speaks

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 24.—The empire Day celebrations in London were held on an unparalleled scale. Eight thousand members of juvenile organisations took part in them at the Stadium at Wembley. The Pageant of Youth, organised by the League of the Empire, marched past the Duke of Connaught in the Royal Box to music played alternately by massed pipe bands from Scottish regiments, 100 strong, and a drum and fife band of 300 strong. The processionists, assisted by a choir of 1,000 Boy Scouts, later sang "Hearts of Oak" and "Auld Lang Syne", accompanied by a massed band of 800 drawn from all units of the British Army.

Rain poured throughout the night and morning, but the sun shone at three o'clock this afternoon, when the proceedings began. Special trains brought spectators from all parts of the country. The Stadium was packed.

Children predominating, the cheering was vociferous when the Duke of Connaught walked to the dais and megaphoned that he had sent a loyal telegram to the King, who had replied expressing thanks. The proceedings were broadcast by wireless. Messages from Empire statesmen were read at intervals in the evening. There was a special Commonwealth performance at the broadcasting station, including Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, who said, inter alia, that "the parent tree is still green. The sap of high endeavour still swells its branches. Our days of voyaging are not over. The world of mind and idea lies around us in vast unexplored tracts. The commonwealth of nations centreing in this Motherland still hears the call to go out in the Elizabethan spirit of gallantry and doughtiness to search for liberty, justice and peace".

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 25.—Their Majesties the King and Queen attended an Empire Thanksgiving service at the Stadium this afternoon when bands, comprising a thousand instruments, and a choir of two thousand which sang at the opening ceremony, reinforced by a Boy Scouts' choir, participated in the impressive ceremonies. The lay procession, which was symbolical of the Builders of the Empire carrying Colonial flags and emblems, entered the Stadium first, followed by the Ecclesiastical procession; which included Archbishops, Bishops, representatives of the religious bodies, and the choir. The Archbishop of Canterbrry delivered an address, and a collection was taken on behalf of the British Empire Cancer Campaign.

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 24.—Empire Day was celebrated throughout the country by the flying of flags and patriotic demonstrations, the most notable of the latter being at Belfast where, in spite of the bad weather, ten thousand school-children assembled in Ormeau Park and were presented with Commemoration medals, and there was a parade of Boy Scouts and Girl Guides which was inspected by the Duke of Abercorn.

Syrian Trouble Due To Brigands

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, May 24.—General Weygand, interviewed by journalists, gave details of the incident on the Turco-Syrian frontier, which has been greatly exaggerated by the Turkish and foreign press. The Petit Parisien says: "It was necessary to get the facts. Complete calm reigns in Syria. The country is prosperous. The incidents can be summed up in a few brigand raids on the Turco-Syrian frontier. Recently, on May 12, there was looting in the districts of Meiden Ekbes and in three districts north-east of Azaz and on May 16 there was an attack by bandits on the French observation post at Meiden Ekbes."

Rome Parliament Is Opened By King

(Reuter's Service)

Rome, May 24.—The King, accompanied by the Queen and the Royal Family, today opened Parliament in the presence of Signor Mussolini and the members of his Cabinet, Senators and Deputies and members of the Diplomatic Body.

In the speech from the Throne, His Majesty said that the tasks begun by the Government must be continued determinedly. Juridical and administrative reforms were necessary. Military problems must be resolved according to the economic situation of the country and the demands of foreign policy. Italy was unable to remain unarmed among armed nations. She was unable to run the great risk of being taken unawares. Italy's foreign policy must be peace with dignity. Italy was ready to direct all her energies towards reaching an equitable solution of the reparations questions, which would eliminate threatening dangers, and she was ready to make sacrifices in order that peace might be guaranteed provided that her legitimate fundamental interests were safeguarded.

German Premier Seeks Co-operation

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, May 24.—The German Chancellor, Herr Marx, is continuing negotiations with the Nationalists, whose collaboration with the People's Party and other Right groups would form an Opposition of 180 votes. The Nationalists are said to have accepted the experts' plan with reservations, namely, the restoration of German administration in the occupied territories and the Customs unity of the Reich, the resumption by the Germans of the railways now under the Regie, the return to the Ruhr of the expelled officials and the evacuation by the Allies of the Right Bank of the Rhine.

London And Rome To Settle Dispute

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 24.—In view of the forthcoming visit of the Italian sovereigns to England satisfaction is expressed in both countries at the official announcement of the decision to conclude an agreement with regard to the vexed question of Jubaland, whereby part of the Jubaland province in Kenya colony will be added to Italian Somaliland on the lines laid down by Viscount Milner at Scialoja in 1920. The details will be settled in London by British and Italian experts immediately.

Reuter's correspondent in Rome states that Italy is pleased with the agreement, because it reestablishes close Anglo-Italian friendship and constitutes a friendly compromise auguring well for a prompt agreement by the experts.

Wants America To Take Over Island

(Reuter's American Service)

Washington, May 24.—President Coolidge has forwarded to the Senate a recommendation by Secretary of State Hughes for extension of United States sovereignty to Swain Island, an isolated atoll 200 miles E. S. E. of Apia.

State Department records show that the British discoverer of Swain Island ceded it by deed to an American and that the British conceded it to United States sovereignty.

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 24.—The Industrial Daily News learns that a well-known Glasgow manufacturing firm has secured an order for 15 miles of welded steel pipes, averaging three feet in diameter, in connection with the new water-supply scheme of Singapore, in which connection further important orders are expected to be placed in Britain soon.

Mosul To Remain Turkish, He Says

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, May 24.—Regarding the possibility of an Anglo-Turkish agreement as a result of the present negotiations on the subject of Mosul, Fethy Bey declares that Mosul belongs to Turkey because it is Turkish. Britain's claims, it is stated, have not been decreased and she is claiming Mosul, Karkouk and Soulem, but the Turkish national sentiment is very strong and the chances of an agreement are small.

(Reuter's Service)

Constantinople, May 26.—The Anglo-Turkish negotiations, proceeding here since May 20 relative to the disputed territory of Mosul which is at present incorporated in Iraq, have reached a deadlock. Fethi Bey, on behalf of Turkey, demands the rendition of the whole district, while Sir Percy Scott, on behalf of Britain, insists on the present frontier with slight modifications.

The speeches at the four meetings held were practically a repetition of the old arguments exhausted at Lausanne, and, in spite of the friendly atmosphere prevailing, no progress has been made as shown by the fact that a map handed to Sir Percy Scott yesterday morning merely established the frontier-line which the Turks claim in an unmodified form.

It is understood that Sir Percy Cox has asked the Government for instructions and meanwhile no fresh meeting has been arranged. Failure to agree will mean reference to the Council of the League of Nations, as provided in the Lausanne Treaty, which, it is believed, the Turks are anxious to avoid.

Liquor Steamer Seized In Texas

(Reuter's American Service)

Galveston, Tex., May 25.—What is probably the first seizure under the new Anglo-American Treaty was made yesterday by a coast-guard cutter, which brought in the British motor-vessel Panama, carrying a cargo of liquor, estimated at 1,000 cases. She is alleged to have been captured within an hour's steaming of the coast.

Three Aviators Killed In Crash

There is no Satisfactory Substitute for Keds!

Keds are the standard by which all canvas rubber-soled shoes are judged. They make you proud of their appearance as well as enthusiastic about their comfort and wear.
Keds, of course, vary in price according to type. But no matter what kind of Keds you buy, every pair gives you the highest possible value at the price.
They're good-looking shoes, Keds. There's a cut and style to them that give your feet that trim look—yet, they're tough, springy and long wearing.
Your feet couldn't be cooler or more comfortable unless you wore sandals!
Remember—while there are other shoes that may at first glance look like Keds, no other shoes can give you Keds value. Keds are made only by the United States Rubber Company. If the name KEDS isn't on the shoes, they aren't real Keds.

CHINA TURNS TO MAKING OF CLOCKS FOR HOME MARKET

Handmade Timepieces Both Substantial And Accurate

GERMANY LEADS

Sells Most In China; Japan Is Second

A report that Canton has a large native clock factory, one of the first time piece manufactories established in China, led to a local investigation of this industry. Apparently there is no Chinese company producing clocks but there are a number of individual clock makers who are turning out a standardised clock which is sold to native buyers at a retail price of approximately $40.

Consequently, the time piece field is left open to foreign manufacturers, and at present Germany is supplying most of the watches and clocks on the market in Shanghai and other parts of China. Japan comes second to Germany in this field. The former's supply has been reduced, however, by the earthquake, giving Germany a strong lead.

The turn-over of one German firm in Shanghai in time pieces is said to be about $100,000 a year. The German products retail for $5 to $15 and are bought principally by the lower class Chinese. Most of the watches and clocks seen in the shops along Nanking Road are German-made.

MADE BY HAND

The native-made clock in Shanghai is limited to one design, a large square substantial looking instrument which rests on a carved wooded pedestal and stands on the floor. As this clock has a total length of about two feet, it has no resemblance to the familiar "grandfather clock" in the States. These clocks are made entirely by hand, and it requires one clock-maker about one month to turn out a finished article.

It is said that about one thousand of these $40-clocks are manufactured annually in Shanghai by the individual clock makers. Since they are carefully made by hand, they last a long time. They do not have the delicate mechanism of some of the foreign clocks, but all parts are substantially made and the time which they keep is approximately correct.

One serious attempt was made in Shanghai to establish a modern time piece factory. This venture ended in financial failure about three years ago. The company, formed by native merchants, had a capital of about $100,000. Modern equipment was imported from America and several hundred workmen were employed. The product turned out was satisfactory, but the concern did not have the courage or capital, perhaps, to hold on until the line could be established in the market.

A report from Canton says: "The time pieces seen on top of our light poles on the street crossings are native made, the product of the Chung Hua or China Clock Co., Ltd. Many shops in the city also have China-made clocks for sale. The company has a capital of $350,000, and its large manufacturing establishment is at Five Eye Bridge in Namho, not far from the Canton-Samshui R. R. station. The factory occupies more than 300 cheng of space."

It is said that this plant, when operating at full capacity, is able to turn out 150 clocks daily and several hundred dollars' worth of other articles. Mr. Lai Lui-hok is general manager of the company. The report continues:

SEE EXPORT FIELD

"The Chinese have been using clocks for many years, but the possibility of producing them themselves instead of importing these articles, did not arise until Mr. Lai launched the local company. The Japanese have been making their own clocks for thirty years, it is said. A majority of the clocks used in Canton come from Japan. If the local company succeeds in enlarging its capacity and efficiency, soon it may be able to compete with the importers of foreign clocks, as the cost of production, as far as labor is concerned, is very low. Women workers may be acquired for 30 cents a day, a condition not existing elsewhere. It is the intention of the company to have its products first introduced among the people of China and then extend its markets to the Straits and to other countries in this part of the world."

The seriousness in which Japan has taken up the making of time pieces is indicated by the size of the companies engaged in this line. For instance, the Amano Ornamental Clock Mfg. Co., Ltd., has a capital of Y.1,000,000, all paid up. The company was formed in January, 1920, by Mr. K. Amano and his associates. There are about ten large corporations in Japan which manufacture clocks, meters and scales. The Seikosha Hattori Clock and Watch Works, manufacturing watches, clocks and gramaphones, has a capital of Y.10,000,000.

Artificial Silk, Rayon Or Glos, Which Cognomen Is The Most Effective?

Silk Circles In America Dispute Most Appropriate Appellation To Be Given Rival Of Real Silk

The recommendation of the committee of fourteen, headed by S. A. Salvage, vice president of the Viscose Company, that the word "rayon" be adopted immediately for "artificial silk" instead of "glos," previously selected by the artificial silk committee of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, excited no great amount of comment in the trade though it seemed to be [illegible] generally admitted that "rayon" sounds more pleasing to the ear than "glos."

Indications are that the question of a name is far from settled. Artificial silk, it is understood, will continue to be used in some sections of the trade; in others perhaps "glos" will be adhered to while in still others the yarn probably will be known as "rayon." It appeared that the National Retail Dry Goods Association would be reluctant to change from "glos" to "rayon" unless it can be shown that the newly suggested name meets with the approval of the majority of the sellers of fabrics made from this fiber as well as with a majority of the producers of the fiber and manufacturers.

The attitude of the Silk Association of America on the proposed new name is understood to be problematical. That organisation has gone on record as favoring "glos." In a statement issued a few days ago, Walter Gordon Merritt, counsel for the Silk Association of America, said that "glos" as a name "to describe imitation silk has already been approved by eight national associations, several commissions, twenty newspapers and a considerable number of prominent retail dealers and individual concerns.

"Letters urging support of this movement have received widespread circulation." Some prominent members of the Silk Association are understood to be heartily in favor of retaining the word "glos."

Bertrand R. Clarke, vice president of the Tubize Artificial Silk Company of America, said yesterday that as between "rayon" and "glos" the former was 100 percent better, adding, however, that he did not feel that "rayon" was "as clear, as lucid and as honest as the present term, artificial silk." He said that he would heartily indorse "rayon" in place of "glos," which word he considered would be a detriment to the trade. It is understood, however, that the Tubize Company will continue to use "artificial silk" until a name is adopted that is considered by the company to be more appropriate than either "glos" or "rayon."

It was said at the offices of the National Retail Dry Goods Association that the resolutions adopted by the committee of fourteen had not yet reached that organisation. It is presumed that soon after resolutions are received a meeting of the artificial silk committee will be called by the chairman, E. C. Blum, of Abraham and Straus, at which the matter will be gone into thoroughly. Lew Hahn, managing director of the association, is out of the city and it is not likely that any action will be taken by the committee until his return, probably some time next week.

VISCOSE LIKES "RAYON"

Whether the Silk Association of America will consider giving its indorsement to the word "rayon" as the generic name for "artificial silk" instead of "glos," probably will be determined at the next meeting of the executive committee to be held some day next week. The association recently went on record as favoring the word "glos." That was before the special committee, headed by S. A. Salvage, vice president of the Viscount Company, had selected "rayon."

Consideration of the matter will be given at the request of Mr. Salvage, who recently sent a letter to James A. Goldsmith, president of the Silk Association of America, asking if the association would rescind its former action and adopt the word "rayon." Mr. Goldsmith replied that he would put the question before the executive committee at its next meeting.

Mr. Salvage made it plain in his letter that his company intends to adopt and popularise the name "rayon." He also pointed out that most of the silk manufacturers who consume large quantities of "artificial silk" are opposed to the word "glos."

The letter to Mr. Goldsmith read:

"We have been informed that the Silk Association of America has adopted the word 'glos' as a substitute for the term 'artificial silk,' but most of the silk manufacturers who consume the important quantities of artificial silk have informed us that they do not approve of the word 'glos' and will not adopt or use it.

"We feel that the word 'glos' is detrimental to artificial silk and we will not adopt it, but as there appears to have been a demand to find a name for artificial silk, a committee, which the writer had the honor to head, was appointed to find a name, and we recommended that artificial silk be named 'rayon,' we propose to adopt and and popularise that name.

"Under the circumstances, we would like to know if you would consider urging your association to rescind its action in adopting the word 'glos,' and adopt the name 'rayon' instead."

The letter was signed "The Viscose Company, S. A. Salvage, vice president."

The artificial silk committee of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, which selected the name "glos," then decided to reopen the question by appointing Mr. Salvage to head a committee and has not yet had a meeting to consider the report of the special committee. It was said that a meeting probably would soon be held.

WOMEN PREFER "GLOS"

Horace B. Cheney, of Cheney Bros., who was a member of the committee of retailers and manufacturers which selected the word "glos" as the generic name for "artificial silk," gives no indication that he will be willing to accept "rayon" as a substitute for the word originally chosen. On the contrary, statements given out by him indicate that he will continue to work for the general adoption of "glos."

In a statement given out he said that more than sixteen leading women's club throughout the country had approved the use of the world "glos" and have expressed their desire to help incorporate the new word into current language.

Letters have been received approving the word from officers of such clubs as the General Federation of Women's Clubs, Virgina Federation of Women's Clubs, Montana Federation of Women's Clubs, New Jersey State Federation of Women's Club, Mrs. William Cumming Story, of the New York City Federation of Women's Club, and from the Florida Federation of Women's Clubs. Others include Marietta Women's Club, of Marietta, Ga.; Mrs. Summer Browning Knox, president of the Alpha Delphian Chapter of Le Mars, Iowa; Mrs. Mary R. Brown, president of the Bradintown Women's Clubs, Florida; Mrs. G. F. Major, of the Pierian Club, of Trinidad, Colo., and Mrs. Carl R. Alford, of the Williamantic Women's Club, of Williamantic, Conn.

TOKIO'S WALL ST. TO GIVE WAY TO A MODERN CITY

Financial Center Must Be Changed : Two Sites Considered

Kabutocho, the Wall Street of Tokio and the financial center of all Japan, is about to lose the distinction which it has so proudly borne for scores of years. Like other old-fashioned, rural spots in the nation's capital, Kabutocho, with its narrow dirty lanes and alleyways must soon give way to new permanent buildings, wider streets and an up-to-date city planning system now being contemplated by the Reconstruction Board.

Kobutocho has for years been the site of the Tokio Stock Exchange, brokerage and banking offices. When the stock exchange building burned down during the war, officials of the exchange contemplated changing the site for one closer to the business heart of the city. But for sentimental reasons the change was never made and the new building was built on the ruins of the old one.

When this structure was burned down in the great fire of last September 1 again the question came up of choosing another site. but the proposal was rejected and a temporary structure was erected on the same old site. Temporary shacks, brokerage offices, sprung mushroom-like around the stock exchange and business continued as of old.

But the Reconstruction Bureau, whose word is law, has willed that the narrow alleys in Kabutocho must go, must give way for the Greater Tokio plans Therefore it is necessary to find a new site for the nation's financial center.

Two sites are under contemplation. One is the site of the Government printing office near Kandabashi, and the other is a lot in Marunouchi. The board of directors of the stock exchange plan to erect a modern building which will not only house the business of the exchange but will also provide office rooms for brokers and others engaged in financial and commercial pursuits.

In order to raise the capital needed for such a building, the board of directors plans to sell 50 percent of the building stock to shareholders in the stock exchange and to licensed brokers. The other half of the fund will be provided by the stock exchange itself. Shareholders in the building stock will be given preference in leasing office space and a discount on office rent. Later, if possible, the stock exchange will take over all outside stock.

The plan, favored by the board, must first be referred to a general meeting of all shareholders before action can be taken.

Sweden Is Supplying Electrical Plants

Asea Installing A Power Station In Quebec And Equipment In Spain

Featured in the annual report of Asea, the General Electric Company of Sweden, are orders for the installation of a large power station in Quebec, for equipment of several plants in Spain, for the huge power station in Volkovstrei, Russia, and a contract to deliver fifty electric locomotives to the Swedish State Railway, together with five transformer stations for the stretch between Stockholm and Gothenburg.

Asea's total turnover for 1923 amounted to $27,600,000, but the net profit was only $150,000, which, however, means a decided improvement over the previous year's business, which brought a loss of $126,000. The number of employes is at present 5,201. There is continued energetic work toward enlarging the export markets.

The accelerated activity in electrification has given rise to a new method of lengthening the life of telegraph and transmission poles, invented by the Furnos Company of Stockholm, which has proved so successful after extended tests that it has been adopted by several foreign Governments and other organised bodies. The process consists essentially of charring the pole with a blower torch, thus destroying the fungi and exposing the cracks of the seasoned wood, which is then impregnated with creosote.

Another important invention in this line is the Forselle vacuum drying process, by which wood can be seasoned artificially within two days after the tree has been felled. Poles and logs are placed in a large cylinder in which a vacuum is created by a centrifugal pump. The moisture is thus drawn off both from the sap wood and the heart wood. Experts who have observed the tests report that after forty-eight hours of drying most of the samples were ready for immediate use. The cost of the operation is a little more than $1 per thousand board feet.

The Swedish lumber interests are optimistic, owing to the fact that the orders during six weeks have totalled 41,250,000 board feet. England continues to lead the market, with France, Holland, Belgium and Spain following. In spite of the depreciated exchange the orders from France have been heavier than in the corresponding period preceeding. Contracts are reported to have come in recently for deliveries of Swedish lumber to countries even as remote as Australia.

Announce New Plan For Silver Coinage In Soviet Russia

By the way of preparation for the issue of Russian Government treasury notes of five, three and one gold ruble denominations, also for the anticipated circulation of silver coin, the Central Executive Committee and the Council of People's Commissaries have adopted the following formal resolutions:

1. To terminate, from February 1, 1924, the printing of Soviet money tokens the value of which is not represented in a stable currency.

2. To terminate, from February 15, 1924, the issue of the aforesaid money tokens from the Currency Office of the Union People's Commissariat for Finance, and also from the local reserve funds of the People's Commissariat for Finance.

3. To destroy, in the proper order, the reserves of the aforesaid money tokens which remain in State printing works, and in the Currency Office and the local reserve funds of the People's Commissariat for Finance.

4. The aforesaid money tokens which have been put in circulation prior to February 15, 1924, and which are found in the cash offices of the Union People's Commissariat for Finance, or of State and public institutions and enterprises, or among private persons, remain legal tender up to such times as there are to be determined by a special regulation of the Union Council of the People's Commissariat concerning the order of redemption of the aforesaid money tokens.

The minting of small silver coins will be undertaken during the present month.

A Civilising Influence

ADMIRAL SIR AUTHUR LEVESON, Commander-in-Chief of the British China Station, made some uncommonly pertinent observations at the Peking Anglo-American Association's tiffin given in his honor last Friday. He had many things to say of timely significance, and one of the things which has impressed the Admiral a good deal since coming to this part of the world is the way in which tropical races out here are being administered by the more civilised peoples, as in the case of the Dutch in Java, the French in Annam, the British in Malaya and the Americans in the Philippines. He thinks it is "perfectly wonderful" to see all these different nationalities handling the situation in the way they are handling it, all over the Far East. There is an old nautical adage that "different ships have different long splices, but the splices hold nevertheless." The Admiral thinks that is true of the way in which all these different places are being governed—there are different ideas and different methods but there is good in them all.

There is a section of radical Chinese who would love to see every foreign man, woman and child ejected bag and baggage from this country. In India also the extremists would like to have what they are pleased to term "self-government," provided British men-of-war remain within call to return in the event of trouble. Yet the radicals of both countries forget how much they really owe to the civilising influence of the foreigner and how backward their countries would have been today but for the much maligned alien in their midst. The case of India, or at least that portion of the country which does not appear to be amenable to reason, furnishes a classic example of base ingratitude. Evidence continues to pile up that India's malcontents have not been influenced by the recent warning of Mr. Ramsay MacDonald or the definite statement of Secretary of State Olivier as to the result of unconstitutional agitation on the development of self-governing institutions in the great peninsula. They appear as convinced as ever that they can attain their goal, Swaraj, or home rule, by methods of reckless obstruction, perhaps even by violence. The one feature which can be seen as hopeful is that these tactics are coming to be discredited among the native population. This may lead into some better road. One greatly hopes it will. For the moment, however, the tendency is all to follow in the older path of obstructionism, or worse.

Four items recorded in recent cables may be cited in substantiation of this point: A large and well-equipped bomb factory has been discovered near the center of Calcutta; at the Cawnpore trial of eight prisoners charged with conspiracy against the sovereignty of the King-Emperor, correspondence was placed in evidence indicating the close connection of Indian revolutionaries with Moscow's Third International; the Swarajist members of the Bengal Council rejected the budget offered by Governor Lytton, in the face of his warning that such action would bring no pause to the general government, though it would paralyse all departments functioning as "ministerial" under the dyarchical system, and, in particular, would starve at once whatever institutions were dependent on Governmental contributions; and a combination of Swarajist and Liberal votes in the Assembly at Delhi has defeated the finance bill there, thus forcing the Government of India to act by fiat.

In this last-mentioned debate a movement came into prominence, which, while not unexpected in the Protectorate itself, has occasioned some surprise elsewhere. The Sawarajists repudiated all authority of the Imperial Parliament, on the ground that the "British have no right in India and never have had." This is a point which Lord Olivier, in his recent London address, had anticipated, saying:

> It is being urged by Indians today that we have no right in the country. The truth is no home rule or national movement whatever would there be possible had it not been for our work. My Government pins its faith to a program of constitutional democracy, but we know, from the lessons of centuries of experience in Europe and America, that the conditions of a successful democracy do not at present exist in India and cannot be established on a few months' notice.

The same argument applies with equal force to the case of China, where a section of the people fondly hope that, with the abolition of extraterritoriality, there will be a new heaven and a new earth for the Chinese nation. What Lord Olivier pointedly says of India applies with equal cogency to the Philippines and to China—the conditions of a successful democracy do not at present exist and cannot be established on a few months' notice. Democracies are not established overnight and if the Americans and the British were to leave the Philippines and India tomorrow they would not alone be rendering a disservice to the native peoples of those regions of the world but they would also be committing a dereliction of duty which would go down in history as one of the major blunders of statesmen. The British and the Americans as well as the Dutch and the French are in their respective territories not by right of conquest but by that greater moral right which stands above mere brute force. Whatever mistakes may have been made in matters of high policy by these nations, it cannot seriously be suggested that the presence of white men in these regions of the world has proved a disadvantage to the natives of those lands.

The Dawes Report Explained

THE so-called "Dawes Report" to the extent of several columns of small type dealing with the financial condition and possibilities of Germany has now been printed by most of the newspapers, but with the exception of a small minority, it is questionable how widely it is understood. The fact that it has been accepted in principle by most of the European Powers as a basis for the ultimate settlement of the Reparation Problem is sufficient for most of us who have felt, along with Secretary Hoover, that "the greatest single barrier to the economic recuperation of the world has been the unsettlement of German reparations, with all the malign forces that have flowed from it in unemployment, continued great armament, disturbance to world finance, instability of exchange—all in a multitude of directions."

No-one can tell at this early stage just what will be the final result of the Dawes Report, but of this much we are certain thus far, Brigadier-General Charles G. Dawes apparently has made concrete and workable something which has been, since the close of the European War, dangerously intricate and unworkable. He has given the Reparations Committee a plan which it can lay before the world and Germany—and the United States—as an impartial solution of the economic difficulties.

The following excellent summary of the Dawes Report is reproduced from the Woman Citizen published in Washington:—

1.—Under certain conditions Germany can pay. Her taxes on true wealth must be made as high proportionately as those of France and England—which they have not been.

2.—Germany needs help for the first four years in order to make payments. In place of a moratorium, the report recommends a substantial loan—perhaps 800,000,000 gold marks, of which Americans and Britons would be expected to take half. In the event of this loan, Germany would pay smaller sums for the first four years—50,000,000 gold marks for the first.

3.—After the four years Germany would pay annually 2,500,000,000 gold marks, and more if prosperity warrents—on a sliding scale.

4.—The total amount of reparations is not fixed. Optimists say this leaves the door open for reduction in the amount if France should relent, but, on the other hand, it means the continuance of uncertainty. Germany will urge that a total be fixed.

5.—The principal sources of German payments are to be German railways, mortgages on German industries, and general taxes. Germany will run her own railways, but for fifty years they will be under international supervision. The industries are to be mortgaged for two and a half billions as security. If G.$75,000,000 is not produced, the mortgage will be called. If there is a deficit from one source of revenue, it is to be made up from some other source.

6.—Two billions in capital abroad are to be repatriated under German control.

7.—A new German bank of issue should be established to help in stabilising currency.

8.—French and Belgian occupation of the Ruhr should be limited so there shall be no interference with Germany's industrial activities there, particularly with railroads and industries. German economic sovereignty, that is, should be restored; but withdrawal of military occupation is not suggested. This is another point on which Germany will urge changes.

9.—Germany will not be required to pay the cost of armies of occupation, as in the past. Amounts paid count directly on reparations.

10.—The whole plan hinges on the international loan, as the substitute for a moratorium. Weaknesses that have been pointed out are the lack of a fixed total and of a plan for a tribunal, less partisan than the Reparations Commission, to consider revision of the figures—e.g., for the fifth year, in case they should prove too high. The committee, perhaps, could not, in the nature of its limitations, determine all these factors, but they are left for Governments to work out.

Russian Optimism

MZINOVIEFF'S statement relative to the domestic and foreign situation of the Soviet Government is not given us in as extensive a form as we would have liked, but there is sufficient therein, taken in combination with other messages which we have received of late, to form a fair idea of the situation. The optimism which marked his speech at the Congress of the Russian Communist party is probably more than justified when we come to consider what has happened during the past year. All of a sudden, without any great warning to the world at large, came the recognition of the Russian Government by several other countries, Great Britain was by no means backward, and there is evidence that whatever initial advantage Germany obtained in the first instance by her readiness to recognise the Moscow Government, has been discounted by recent events in Germany which have given much umbrage to the Russian Government. It was with the negotiations between Russia and Great Britain that the principal point which has kept Russia outside the pale for so long, came up for really earnest discussion. On the question of the debts incurred by the Imperial regime, the Soviet was adamant. They did not want to pay them, nor recognise them, and, in fact, desired to start all over again with a clean sheet. Possibly, too, they felt that with what they had to offer the world it would be possible to bring about a cancellation of pre-revolution liabilities, merely by insistence thereon and the promise of the rehabilitation of trade of which Europe stood in such need.

In the early stages of the negotiations with the British, negotiations which even now are not too well advanced towards settlement, there was this same insistence that Russia's obligations should be wiped out. Great Britain was equally determined that they should be paid, a determination shared equally as strongly by the United States. Within the last few weeks, despite the vehement denunciations of the British by M. Trotsky, we have seen it reported that while the Russian Government was not prepared to assume liability for all imperial debts and their payment in full, they were prepared to set aside a lump sum under conditions suggestive of a compounding with creditors. They did not desire to pay anything, but if the worst came to the worst would be prepared to pay something. This proposition has, so far as we have learned up to date, not been accepted by the British Government, but it nevertheless betokens a weakening of the Russian Government, and an indication that Russia has not yet made plain exactly how far she will go in order to obtain recognition from the important Powers of the world. It may be a little too premature to suggest that there will be a complete capitulation, but there can now be little doubt that the original Russian position has undergone very substantial modification.

Turning to the domestic position, we find in the speech, as reported, a singular inconsistency. There was no question, he is reported to have said, of limiting the new economic policy or of abolishing private trade. In the same breath, however, he speaks of the co-operative societies as the only means of combatting private capital. It is difficult to believe anything but that ultimately the Soviet, following the doctrines of Communism with which it does not appear to have been particularly successful up to the present, will work towards the elimination of private capital and the substitution therefor of government or state money. In these days, when so many old beliefs have been discounted, it is difficult to believe that this may not ultimately be possible, though whether the Soviet is able to do it, is quite another story.

THE WATCH, THE CLOCK AND THE DRUM

Somebody said that if a watch, a clock and a drum are going at the same time, you hear only the drum.

Stop the drum, and you hear the clock. Stop the clock, and you hear the watch.

When one denies the existence of the finer voices of life, what it usually amounts to is simply that he does not hear them, they are drowned out by coarser noises.

In the play, "Sinners," a girl who has yielded to the lure of the city and sold herself for money and fine clothes happens to meet again the lover of her youth, a manly country doctor. He discovers her infamy, but instead of upbraiding her he quietly says to her, in substance: "When you get through, and turn from your present life with loathing, come back to me. Of course, I cannot love you as I once did. But I love you. I am the kind that love but once. There will never be anybody but you." And the amazed and shattered woman cries out. "I didn't know there were such men!"

It is the way of us all. We do not know there exist beautiful, towering divine souls right among us. We do not know they walk the streets like tall white angels. We do not know they are silently doing their life tasks, close to us, so close we brush by them daily, going about their work with such steelar poise, and with so wondrous a dignity, that if we could perceive it we might hear a command from the white sky: "Put off thy shoes from off thy feet, for the place whereon thou standest is holy ground."

The drum! It sounds in the newspaper; the roar of scandal, murder, politics, and business; and obscures for us the real life of the people moving toward justice, love, and truth, but moving silently, as the watch ticks.

The drum! It rattles and throbs in war's wild clatter; but that is not all that is going on in Europe; you cannot hear the steady clock-ticks of advancing democracy, the watch-ticks of humanity marking the unfolding of men's conviction, silent and irresistible as time.

The drum of the city! Its street-roar, its night revelry, the roll of its day traffic, its heartlessness and brute bellowings! We cannot hear the modest tickings of thousands of gentle hearts marking time to duty, to service, and to conscience.

The drum! In the bickerings of the family we overwhelm the hidden music of love and loyalty, we miss the myriad thoughts of helpness and self-sacrifice, and we imagine they are not.

The drum in your own brain, the cheap beating and reasonance of minor issues, of pride and hate and struggle—because of this you know not anything of your real life flowing in continuous undercurrent.

Stop the drum! Stop the clock! Listen to the watch! Enter into silence! You will hear deep, miraculous things, in the world, in the lives of those about you, in yourself.

For the significant processes of destiny are not as drum-beats, but as the ticking of the watch.

The War Against Criminals

The war against the criminal class is as silly as any other war.

The idea of a criminal class is as half-baked and as full of bunk as the idea of any other class.

There is no criminal class.

It might be said in truth that we are all criminals, and with equal truth that none of us are criminals. There are criminal traits in every man. They are more or less restrained in some and more or less unregulated in others.

They should be treated pathologically. That is, we should treat them as diseased, perverted men. The institution in which we treat them should be more in the nature of a hospital than of a prison.

That means that it should be an institution organised to cure them, or, where cure is impossible, to restrain them. It should not be an institution organised for the purpose of hurting them, bruising their bodies or debasing their minds. This method is sheer nonsense. It is not justice at all, but should more properly be termed vengeance.

Indeed, when we ordinarily speak of bringing an offender to justice what we really mean is wreaking our vengeance upon him.

When a little boy bumps into the dining-room table he becomes angered, goes out into the kitchen and gets the hatchet and proceeds to chop the table. About nine-tenths of our punishment of criminals is upon that level. We are chopping the table.

If what we want is justice we should take the offender, put him under careful observation, find out what is the matter with him, remedy the fault if we can, or if his nature is too twisted to be curable restrain him.

We do not beat a man over the head because he has the smallpox, or scarlet fever. We isolate him, try to save his life, and see to it that he doesn't contaminate anyone else. That is the national method of dealing with criminals.

The other day at Eddyville, Ky., some armed convicts barricaded themselves in the dining room of the State penitentiary and held the guards at bay. In some way they secured firearms and maintained a regular siege. Several people were killed. The authorities brought up a machine gun squad and a tear gas troops from Louisville, and the affair was carried on with all the pomp and circumstance of war. As soon as you dignify crime by making war on it you are going to attract all the adventurous spirits to a criminal career. When you treat crime for what it is, when you treat it as perversion, degeneration and a kind of disease, you are going to remove nine-tenths of the glamour from it.

Another Thing To Go Over

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS,

In the eyes of science, and of common sense, informed by modern knowledge, the antiquated British system of weights and measures, which we continue to use, is equalled in absurdity by the Fahrenheit method of measuring temperature. Both should be thrown into the discard together.

The instrument which science universally employs to measure temperature is the centigrade thermometer. Its use is so habitual with scientific men that in writing for non-technical readers they often neglect to state that the temperatures spoken of are measured by the centigrade system. The consequence is that perhaps nine out of ten readers suppose that the measures are in the commonly used Fahrenheit degrees, and so are led far away from the facts that it was intended to put before them.

The fundamental defect of the Fahrenheit system is that it is based on an unnatural, or artificial, zero-point. What may very properly be called a natural zero point of temperature for thermometers, i. e., the point from which degrees are reckoned upward on one side and downward on the other, is the freezing point of water, or better the melting point of ice. This is a point fixed in the nature of things, and conspicuous to everybody through the fact that it shows the temperature at which water turns into ice, or ice into water. And this is the basis of the centigrade scale—"centigrade" meaning of course, simply graduated in hundredths.

Another natural "point" of temperature, to which the behavior of water calls conspicuous attention is the boiling point. Now, the centigrade thermometer is divided into just 100 degrees from the freezing point up to the boiling point of water. Nothing could be more natural or convenient than that, especially in view of the fact that most of the temperatures that we have experience of in ordinary life are included between those points.

Now, let us see where the Fahrenheit system, or scale, begins its useless complications. Its inventor, Gabriel Daniel Fahrenheit, about 210 years ago, thought that he could get a better zero point by starting with the temperature of a freezing mixture of ice and salt. This he found to be very considerably lower than the point at which pure water freezes, and he adopted it as the zero for his scale.

There is quite a long story of his various experiments in graduating his thermometer, but the upshot was that he finally divided the scale into 212 degrees between his ice-and-salt zero and the boiling point of water. Thirty-two degrees of this scale lie between Fahrenheit's zero and the natural zero indicated by the freezing of water, or the melting of ice.

Thus it comes about that when people (except scientists) in the United States or the British Isles, speak of zero weather they mean something far more severe in the way of cold than is meant when the some term is employed by people living in western, central, and southern Europe, or anywhere where the centigrade system is in popular use.

It makes matters still worse that the Fahrenheit and centigrade degrees are unequal individually. A centigrade degree, on the same thermometer tube, is as long as 1.8 degrees Fahrenheit, so that in calculating the centigrade temperature corresponding to any given Fahrenheit degree, or vice versa, it is necessary to do quite a nice little sum in arithmetic. Not only must you express the one in terms of the other, but you must also carefully allow for the effect of the different location of the zero points. These calculations have often to be made, but there would be no need of them, if only one system was used.

MODIFYING THE BROAD OR NARROW SHOULDER

It is said that we American women are inclined to have broad shoulders, a characteristic we share with our English sisters, because of the fact that we go in more for athletics than do most women of the European countries. Be that as it may, the fact remains that some of us do have rather manish shoulders, and therefore need to look to frocks that soften that bad shoulder line.

Let us first take the sleeve. If your shoulders are broad, be very sure that the armhole of your sleeve is above the line where arm and shoulder join. This helps to make the shoulders look narrower. It is essential also that the top of the sleeve be perfectly flat without the least suspicion of a gather. And it is better that the sleeves be of the same color and material as the rest of the blouse. If a different fabric is used, such as georgette, see that the contrasting material in the rest of the waist comes well back of the shoulder line or armhole. Never use contrasting sleeve material of a bulky or heavy fabric. And, of course, the more slope you can get to your shoulder line, the better it will be.

Do not wear a square cut collar if your shoulders are broad

This applies not only to a frock or blouse, but also to a suit or topcoat. Always keep your armhole above your shoulder line. Never let it fall off the shoulder.

Long neck lines, too, are better than short ones. One of the most becoming styles of collars is the long tuxedo shape. A "V" neck ending in a point is not good, because it makes a direct line leading up in a flare from that point at the lower part of the neck straight to the shoulders in fan fashion.

In contrast to the broad-shouldered woman is the type whose shoulders are much too narrow, narrower in fact than the hips. Such a figure requires that waists and blouses be made with long shoulder effects. Berthas and frills can also be used. This type will find that plaits will help increase the breadth of the shoulders. The armholes may extend to the very edge of the shoulders, and even slightly beyond. In other words, use every device to build out the shoulders.

In the matter of collars, you of the narrow shoulders will find that a long shape should be avoided. This also holds true of the neck line. Vests that come square across the front are usually good.

In fact, the main secret in this matter of shoulders is that broad shoulders should be subdued with short lines, while the narrow ones should be complemented by longer lines. Even in choosing necklaces and chains, this same principle should be observed.

It holds true, also, with fur collars on coats. Do not wear a square coat collar if your shoulders are broad. See to it that the collar is long and sloping, coming as low as possible at the waist.

You have only to experiment with these principles to see how they can be of definite assistance to you. And, if you know that your shoulders are too broad, be thankful that we no longer go in for those extremely short puffy sleeves. In fact, be glad that you can wear sleeves coming clear down to your wrists. They help.

N. Y. DOCK CO. NET INCOME FOR 1923 SHOWS DECREASE

Conservative Purchases By Merchants Diminish Storage Demand

The New York Dock Company's twenty-third annual report, issued last month, shows net income of $622,868, a decrease of $26,397, compared with 1922. Before net deductions there was reported net revenue of $1,929,755, against $2,073,732 in the preceding year, a decrease of $143,976. Total revenues of $3,297,712 compare with $3,827,231 in the preceding year, a decrease of $29,608, or 14 percent. Net deductions were reduced during the year by $117,578.

"Reference was made in the previous year's report to the conservative attitude of merchants toward accumulating stocks of merchandise," said President William E. Halm. "Similar trade conditions prevailing during the year 1923 have resulted in a still further decrease in demands of storage. The policy of the Brazilian Government in providing warehouses for the storage of coffee at the points of origin and placing restrictions on exportation has also contributed to lessen storage requirements."

Total current assets as of Dec. 31 were $901,607, and current liabilities $1,059,668. Of the latter $250,000 were dividends paid Jan. 15 of this year, $431,718 for accrued Federal, State and city taxes, and $209,166 accrued bond interest. Current assets showed a decrease of $334,433, while current liabilities, taking into consideration the items above-mentioned, increased $234,876.

The company's monthly statement of earnings shows for March net income of $51,326, against $46,989 336, and for the three months ended March 31 net income of $131,711, against $124,762, a gain of $6,949.

The annual report of the New York Dock Railway, a New York Dock Company property, in contrast with the report of the parent company, shows for 1923 net income of $52,706, compared with a net loss of $57,593 in 1922, an increase of $110,300. A substantial increase in the amount of traffic handled during the year resulted in an increase in gross operating revenues of $123,820.

SHIP LIQUID RUBBER

Four Steamship Lines Taking It To United States

Shipments of rubber in liquid form from the plantations in the Far East to America have been steadily increasing for more than a year. Rubber in liquid form is known as latex and the method of transporting it across the Pacific involved many experiments with small quantities in special containers.

The suggestion was made to steamship companies that the ballast and oil tanks be thoroughly cleaned so as to carry the latex in the tanks as cargo. There was considerable skepticism at first on the part of the steamship companies, but when experimental cargoes brought no unsatisfactory results shipping companies began to compete for the business, and now four lines are equipped to carry cargoes.

When the ships arrive at an American port the latex is pumped into railroad tank cars of the sort commonly used for the transportation of petroleum. A barge carries the tank cars alongside the ship and the operation of transferring the latex to the cars is conducted by a specially trained crew of workmen.

Practically the entire production of the plantations of the United States Rubber Company in Sumatra and the Malay Peninsula is now shipped to the United States as latex or in the form of "sprayed rubber." Sprayed rubber is coagulated in the manner that its name implies by a new merchanical process. It is very dry and has strength and ageing qualities never before equaled in commercial rubber.

The new methods of handling the latex have revolutionised the routine of plantation activities. Scattered about the company's plantations in Sumatra are nearly fifty receiving stations where the latex is weighed and run into temporary storage tanks.

A narrow-gauge steam railway transports the latex from the receiving stations to the factory if it is to be used for sprayed rubber. If the latex is to be shipped in liquid form to America, it is taken directly by railroad from the receiving stations to the seaboard, where it is stored in big reservoirs.

CARGO CONGESTION IN YOKOHAMA NOW IS ALLEVIATED

Can Handle Cargo 80 Per Cent. As Efficiently As Before Quake

The much-discussed congestion of cargo and shortage of lighters in Yokohama harbor since the September earthquake have been remarkably alleviated, now that the importation of reconstruction materials has ended following the restoration of the customs duty to the normal level on April 1. No more complaints are now heard as to the shortage of lighters and consequent delay in cargo work in Yokohama harbor and things have almost been restored to the pre-quake condition.

Many lighters either were built or brought from the Kwansai district and lighter men are now fully recruited, though they are not yet well trained in cargo work. The cargo-working capacity of Yokohama harbor is now 80 percent of that of the prequake days. In such circumstances, the lighterage which once soared to a record height resulting from shortage of lighters has now slumped from 70 sen a day to 25 sen or 30 sen, and shows signs of a further decline. Accordingly, the high lighterage in Shibaura (Tokio) has dropped to 30 sen or thereabouts. It is anticipated that the rate soon will come down to the prequake level.

The prevailing harbor condition and facilities of Yokohama have been misrepresented in foreign countries, more particularly in the American Pacific coast ports which are most closely connected with Yokohama in trade relations. The Yokohama harbor and municipal authorities are seeking a plan which will give correct information of the harbor status to American merchants who now are unnecessarily afraid of forwarding their cargo to Yokohama and therefore consign them to Kobe instead.

Even the trans-Pacific Steamship Conference still charges an extra freight rate on cargo to be discharged in Yokohama but this precaution is unnecessary for Yokohama harbor, according to the opinions of the authorities concerned.

HAS 2,989 MOTOR SHIPS

Sweden's Conversion of Merchant Vessels Eliminates "Wind-Jammers"

Sweden now has the largest fleet of merchant motor vessels in the world as a result of the rapid motorising of the merchant marine which has been going on during the last decade, at the same time involving a rapid decrease of the tonnage under sail, according to the latest statistics. These show that Sweden's merchant marine at the beginning of the year consisted of 2,989 registered vessels, exclusive of tugs, aggregating 1,331,762 gross tons. Of this number 939 are power vessels, which vary in size downward from the larger seagoing motorships of the Johnson Line and the Graengesberg Mining Company, which are listed as of 9,400 tons dead weight.

The Swedish power vessels now average 256 tons in size, while the 749 sailing ships of the merchant marine average only 113 gross tons per vessel. The signs of the time indicate a speedy disappearance of the "wind-jammers" from the seas, since there is not at present a single sailing vessel under construction in the shipyards of Sweden, Denmark or Norway.

A vessel which at the time of her launching this year will be the greatest passenger motorship in the world is the M. S. Gripsholm, now building in England for the Swedish-American Line. The Gripsholm has a length of 575 feet and a beam of seventy-four feet, and will have a displacement of 23,000 tons. She will accommodate 1,661 passengers, and as the fourth liner in the Swedish-American Line fleet will play an important role in the growing passenger traffic between Sweden and the United States. The annual report of this company for 1923 has just been published and shows a net profit of $640,000, which permitted the declaring of a 6 percent dividend. Twenty-seven round trips were made between Gothenburg and New York during the year, and nearly 29,000 passengers were carried on the westward sailings.

A good year is also reported by the Svea Steamship Line of Stockholm. Its net profit for 1923 amounted to $731,000, and a 6 percent dividend was declared. Two new freight steamers of 1,850 dead weight tons each and designed for overseas services are now under construction for this company.
